House Prepares To Vote Approval Of Foreign Aid

Predict House To Approve Total Amount Of Marshall Fund Bill

AMENDMENTS ARE BEING VOTED ON

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Democratic and Republican leaders joined today in predicting that the House will approve the five billion 653 million dollar foreign aid bill by a better than 5-to-1 vote.

Passage of the bill extending the Marshall aid plan for 15 months to July 1, 1950, is assured when the final vote is taken today or tomorrow.

House majority leader McCormack (D) Mass., majority whip Priest (D) Tenn., and minority leader Halleck (R) Ind., anticipate not more than 75 opposing votes.

Voting On Amendments

The house debated the measure Saturday and plans to begin voting on amendments today.

Rep. Kee (D) W. Va., foreign affairs committee chairman, anticipates a final vote by tonight, but administration leaders think it might be postponed until tomorrow.

The senate took two weeks to dispose of a similar measure authorizing five billion 580 million dollars, before it finally voted 70 to 7 for its bill last Friday.

PA NEWSC OBSERVES

Several new sections of the city will soon be supplied with bus service, as a result of the decision of the P. U. C. on the New Castle situation, as announced on Saturday.

School and college vacations come at the right time this spring season for students who are fishing comes in Friday and both school and college sessions in Lawrence county will not be in operation.

Golfers may be out early, but Pa Newsc noted a group of young ladies busily engaged in an early spring game of croquet on Sunday also.

Ash piles along the highways reveal that they were not in great demand for ashing of the roads during the winter just past. Little impression was made on many of the large piles of ashes which were prepared for winter use last fall, due to lack of snows and ice.

Quite a lot of motorists were noted touring the Pulaski road which was reopened on Saturday evening, apparently in an effort to get a look at conditions caused by the recent break in the Water Company reservoir.

Farmers are apparently taking full advantage of the opportunity this year for early plowing. Many acres in all parts of the county are already plowed.

As a safety measure to protect the lives of school children, residents of Enon Valley have erected lanterns at the entrances to the school building, "School Can You See The Time?" The signs were prepared by the recent death of a schoolboy en route home when the tragedy occurred.

Authorization has been granted the State Highway department in Lawrence county to surface treat at least 28 miles of road in the county during the coming summer. It is reported by Alfred Martin, county superintendent. The work will get under way on June 1. Already delivery of stone and other materials has been started.

Almost every church in the city has services scheduled for this week in conjunction with the observance of Holy Week. Method-

Lawrence County Truckers Go To State Capital

Lawrence county is well represented at the mass meeting of truckers and shippers in Harrisburg today.

Headed by J. Fred Clarke, president of the Lawrence County Motor Truck association, an estimated hundred or more left for Harrisburg last night and today.

The mass meeting is called in an attempt to convince the State Senate that House Bill 560, providing for adjustments in the weight of trucks and loads, is important enough to be brought out of committee for a vote.

The bill passed the House 114 to 88. In the Senate committee it was held in com' by a vote of 14 to 11. The vote was secret.

One Of Rescuers Tells Why He Volunteered

By OWEN CALLIN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

SAN MARINO, Cal., April 11.—Paul Neiford has no particular yearning to dangle in a bo'suns chair at the end of a long rope reaching 100 feet into the bowels of the earth.

He is no miner, sewer salesman or sand hog. Conversely, he's tree surgeon by trade and operates a profitable business in nearby Pasadena.

Yet, for the sake of a little girl he had never seen—except for her pictures in the press—Paul was right there when a hardy band of other heroes such as he volunteered to risk their lives to save her from ugly death.

Have Couple Of Kids Myself

I asked Paul, when the word finally came that Kathy Fiscus was dead, her bruised body lifeless 100 feet below the earth's surface, why he volunteered to aid in rescue operations.

"I have a couple of kids myself," he answered, "and if one of those little darlings suffered the same accident as Kathy, I'd be eternally grateful for the efforts of help I know would come from other parents."

Paul confessed he had no fear of descending into the earth. That is why he went down a 24-inch metal tube without hesitation to dig in the muck and grime in an attempt to get little Kathy out of what was to be her tomb.

"I used to work in a mine," he admitted. "I discovered I hadn't the least bit of claustrophobia in (Continued on Page Two)

Body Of Kathy Fiscus Brought Up From Well

Indications That Little Victim Of Tragedy Died Of Drowning

HEROIC RESCUE PLANS FUTILE

By EVAN HOSKINS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

SAN MARINO, Cal., April 11.—The great rescue operation for little Kathy Fiscus was at a close in the bleakness of death today.

The epic venture which would have cost at least $250,000 if it had been conducted on a commercial basis ended in vain late last night.

Heroic drillers, sand hogs, hard-rock miners and engineers who risked their lives and labored until, in some instances, they dropped in their tracks, reached the child 96 feet down in the black abyss of a 230-foot abandoned well—only to find that she was dead.

Dead Since Friday Afternoon

The tot's family physician, Dr. Robert McCulloch, lowered into the 94-foot escape shaft that had been bored in two feverish days, reported the small Kathy had been dead since shortly after she had slipped into the 14-inch hole while playing in a field Friday afternoon.

She had died, in other words, even before the mammoth rescue operations got under way, a venture whose intense drama gripped the nation and brought millions of prayers for the safety of the entombed child.

Official announcement of Kathy's death was made by one of Dr. McCulloch's associates, Dr. Paul Hanson.

Speaking over a police microphone he gave out the tragic news: "Dr. McCulloch has notified us from the bottom of the pit that little Kathy is dead."

Over 15,000 Spectators

His words were addressed to 15,000 tensed spectators forming a solid bank around "operation rescue."

There was death-like silence for a moment. Then racking sobs. And hundreds of those in the vast throng bowed their heads in prayer.

Dr. Hanson, the surgeon who attended Mrs. Fiscus when Kathy was born, continued:

"The family (David Fiscus and his wife, Alice) has been notified and now we are informing you. For the sake of the family and the hundreds of people who have been working since the accident, we ask you to please leave the scene of the tragedy as quickly as possible.

"If this had been your child, you would not want a large crowd around."

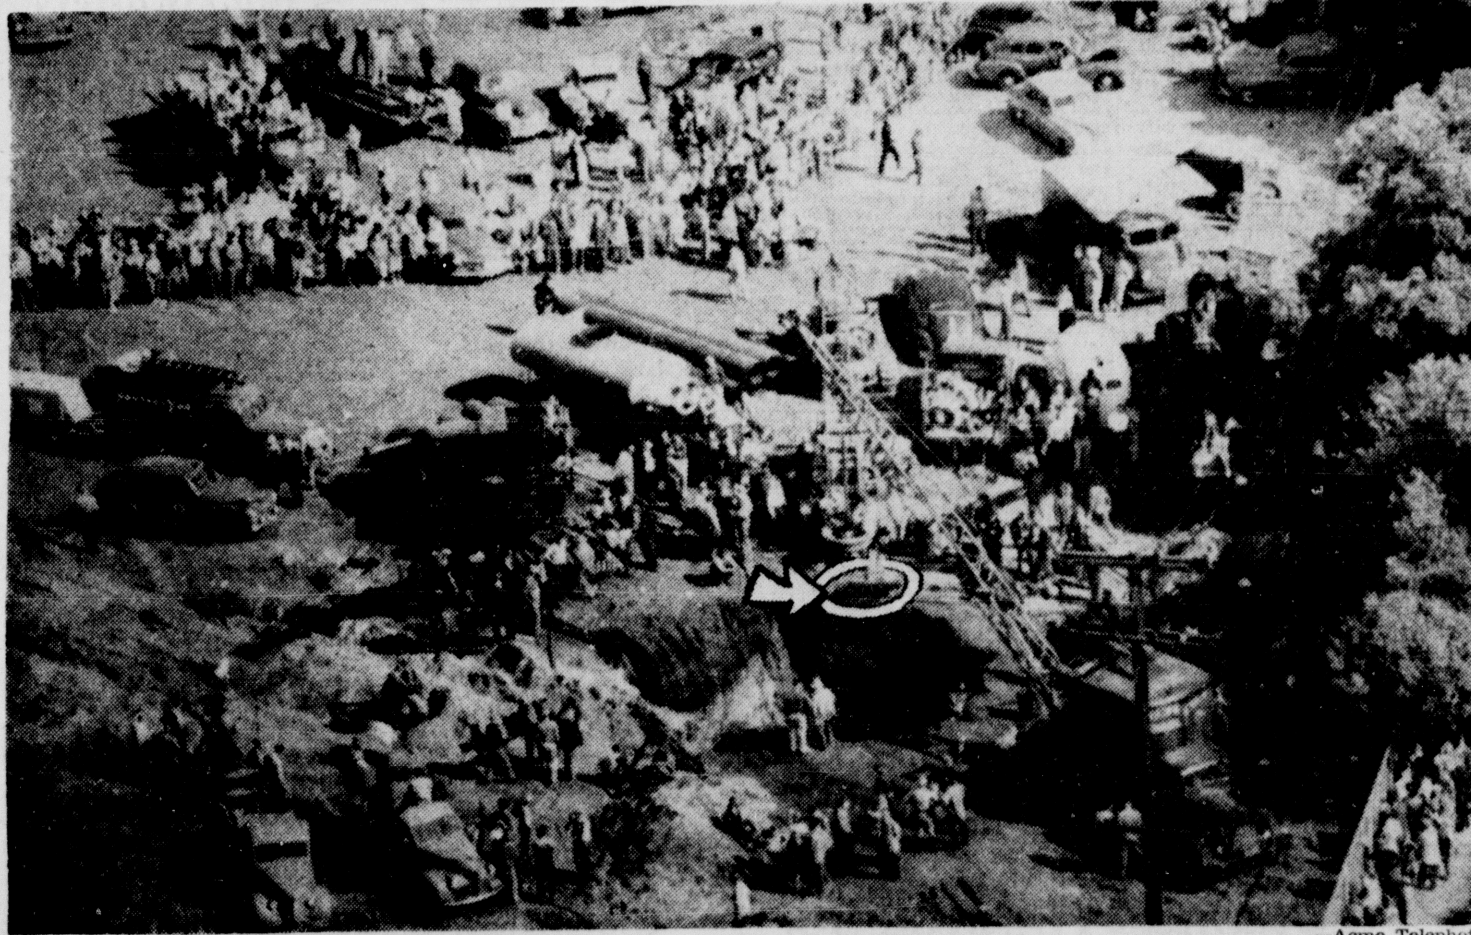

Message From Family

The people showed no sign of moving. The surgeon resumed speaking: "Here is a message from the family: 'There is nothing we can say to fully thank the hundreds of people who have helped us in the search for Kathy. Some have gone home to much needed rest. Our heartfelt gratitude goes out to them for their sacrifices beyond belief.'"

With that, Dr. Hanson retired and the final act of the two-day drama—the removal of the child's body from the pit—began.

Crowe's Defense Will Be Insanity

Will Enter Pleas To Four Indictments In New York Embezzlement Case

NEW YORK, April 11.—(INS)—Attorneys today will enter a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity in behalf of Richard H. Crowe in the $883,660 National City Bank embezzlement case.

Peter Gulotta, senior member of the law firm defending the former assistant bank manager, confirmed that he will ask the Federal District Court to appoint an alienist. Gulotta said he did not expect any objection from the U. S. attorney's office.

Crowe will enter pleas to four indictments that carry total maximum penalties of 45 years in prison and $30,000 in fines—exactly double the amount still missing from the $193,660 in cash with which he disappeared late last month.

The rest of the cash, in small bills, and $690,000 in bonds found in the attic of Crowe's Staten Island home, have all been returned to the bank.

New Booklet On Pennsylvania

Historical Sites, Buildings, Etc., Are Presented In New Publication

OTHER NEWS OF STATE AFFAIRS

HARRISBURG, April 9.—(INS)—A 58-page booklet pinpointing the location of historic sites, buildings and remains in Pennsylvania has been issued by the joint state government commission. The booklet was published in line with a resolution of the General Assembly adopted in 1947. The commission said Pennsylvania abounds in historical treasure which faced destruction unless the assembly acted. The commission recommended that legislation be adopted prohibiting "the destruction or sale" of any of the buildings or sites designated in its booklet "until the proposed action has been brought to the attention of the General Assembly at its regular session." It was pointed out that historical landmarks and buildings worthy of preservation have been lost "for want of prompt action or of anticipating legislation which would prevent the disposal of property of historical significance."

Charles G. Miller, dean of the Pennsylvania legislative correspondents' association, has been presented with a wristwatch by fellow newsmen in recognition of his 40 years covering the Capitol Hill beat for the Harrisburg Evening News. The dean is known among his fellow toilers in the newsroom as "Duke" or "Charley." The presentation was made during the 28th annual banquet and gridiron show at Harrisburg this week. The House of Representatives also adopted a resolution commending Miller for his unbiased coverage. House minority leader Hiram G. Andrews, of Johnstown, who covered the Capitol many years ago for the old Philadelphia North American, told the House that never in 40 years had Miller written anything from malice.

wrangle over secret votes in standing committees on legislation. Under the committee system of the General Assembly, and the same system prevails in Congress, all legislation is sent to committee after being introduced. Neither House can act on the legislation until it is reported by committee. The votes in committee sometimes are kept secret to "protect" legislators from criticism. The Senate is split about evenly on whether to ban secret ballots. It is the contention of opponents that many a legislator would publicly vote for legislation against which he votes in committee.

Rep. Earl E. Hewitt, Sr., (R) Indiana, assailed his colleagues during a session of the House for not being courteously quiet during the reading of a resolution of condolence for a member who had suffered the loss of his father. Hewitt angrily told the House at the conclusion of the resolution not to bother to adopt such a resolution when he died. He told chastened members their noisiness was "disgraceful."

The state's program for taking over 10 intra-state toll bridges will not free them immediately of tolls. Plans call for the commonwealth to continue tolls for at least three years to permit voters to consider a constitutional amendment freeing motor license funds for bridge purchases. The process whereby the amendment must pass two separately elected legislatures—the 1949 assembly is expected to be the first—and then approved by a majority of the state's voters will take at least three years. A $10,000,000 bond issue approved by voters 16 years ago will start the acquisition program rolling under present plans. Should the motor license fund be freed for bridge acquisition, the commonwealth will retire outstanding bonds immediately and eliminate tolls.

REMARRIAGE OF A WIDOW

"I am a widow and plan to remarry. May I marry in church? (2) May I wear a long dress and may my matron-of-honor do likewise, or must we wear informal street-length clothes? (3) May I hesitate in the vestibule to talk to my friends who will not attend my reception? (4) May I have the wedding march played and also a soloist?"

Answer: You may indeed marry in church.

(2) You and your matron-of-honor may wear long dresses or street-length dresses, as you prefer.

(3) Yes, that will be quite all right.

(4) If you will be given away, walking down the aisle with a male relative, you may have the wedding march played and you may have a soloist.

Question: My son will marry soon. What part do I take in the receiving line and what are my duties and responsibilities, that is, what do I have to pay for?

Answer: At the wedding reception you are merely a guest, unless you and the bride's mother choose to have you help with various preparations and assist in any possible way at the reception. You should stand next to the bride's mother in the receiving line.

There are no expenses of the wedding borne by the groom's mother, except her present to the bride.

Bethel Church Extends Call To Willard George

Bethel U. P. church, in North Beaver Township has extended a call to Willard George, former assistant student pastor of the Second U. P. church on County Line street.

Mr. George will preach his trial sermon before sessions of Beaver Valley Presbytery which will convene Tuesday at the New Brighton U. P. church. At that time plans for his ordination and installation will be made. The installation will take place in May at Bethel church.

Without Pastor For Time

The Bethel church has been without the services of a pastor since Rev. J. Harold McCausland left in November 1948 to accept a position in church work in Roanoke, Va. Rev. McCausland served the church twice as its pastor.

Mr. George won a place of admiration among the members of the Second U. P. church and was well liked during his brief ministry there assisting Rev. J. C. Rose. He was a former meteorologist with the Pan American Airways before entering the ministry.

A number of delegates from this city including: Dr. J. Paul Graham of Third U. P. church, L. C. Dayton of Highland church and Rev. J. C. Rose of Second U. P. plan to attend the Presbyterian sessions which will open at 9:30 a. m., and continue throughout the day.

the armed forces "must be accompanied by installation from top to bottom of that establishment of a sense of cost consciousness."

Could Save Over Billion

Hoover, after quoting Eberstadt's "guess" of one and a half billion annually in possible savings, added:

"You can reduce this estimate greatly and it still indicates a staggering waste. And it is a waste beyond the power of Congress or civilian officials to control under the present setup."

The Eberstadt report on budgeting in the Army, Navy and Air Force declared that the defense budget estimates for 1950 as presented to Secretary Forrestal last August 16 "does not inspire confidence in the budgetary procedures of the three departments."

It added:

"The figures do not reflect a reasonable restraint in the circumstances and contain a multitude of questionable and low priority projects."

Asking his audience how we could determine whether a crisis existed, Secretary Livengood asked each to examine himself and note the unrest among individuals. The world is suffering a spiritual and emotional crisis which may be seen in unrest and dissatisfaction, a tendency of people to envy those who have more than we. It was also pointed out that many have the attitude "what can we get from life, not what can we give".

His last factor in unrest included a desire for pursuit of leisure. The banqueters were urged to teach the precepts of Him who walked the shores of Galilee.

City and county residents can be none too careful in igniting of brush and grass fires to clean up their properties for spring. If such fires are started watchers should be on hand at all times and ample "dousing" equipment such as flat shovels, brooms and pails of water should be on hand in case of emergency.

In connection with the recent inquiry as to where circus grounds have previously been located in this city, Pa Newc has received numerous replies.

"It's all one big picture. And it ought to be so arranged that we will not have one conflicting with or hampering the other."

GOP floor leader Wherry (R) Neb., said Congress should "get the whole program on the table, see what we can afford and then do what we can."

Mr. Truman said funds for the arms program must be separate. Dr. Edward G. Nourse, top presidential economic adviser, earlier was reported to have said that the whole program must be "reworked."

But Mr. Truman later declared that Nourse's statement was misinterpreted.

ARREST EIGHTY SUSPECTED IN GREEK PLOTS

liament speaker Moudzouridis, and industrialists Bodhossakis and Katsambas.

Constantin Rentis, Greek minister of public order, announced that all files and weapons of the would-be killers have been seized. He charged the band with committing several murders and terrorist acts in Athens last year.

Rentis told International News Service that the mass seizure was "one of the most important police roundups."

The Greek ministry of public order announced that the plot was discovered on March 11, just a month ago today. It said that today's arrests were the result of confessions of several persons seized immediately after the scheme became known.

Adjournment Of Legislature May Face Delay ThreatFair Employment Practices Legislation May Cause Change
In Program

HARRISBURG, April 11.—(INS)—Teachers' pay and fair employment practices legislation threatened Pennsylvania lawmakers with possible delay in the drive for final adjournment.

Only 12 legislative days remain, under present plans, before the gavel falls for the first time in the 1949 session. The Republican leadership has fixed April 28 as the tentative date for sine die adjournment.

The week's working agenda was expected to begin with a rush with the introduction of legislation to bar discrimination in employment.

To Submit Measure

Sen. Charles R. Mallory (R) Blair, reportedly was prepared to submit an FEP measure to the Senate which eliminates features which caused the defeat of a similar bill by the Senate Judiciary General committee last week.

At the same time, the administration was believed ready to take up the issue of teachers salary increases.

Republican leaders also are slated to make known their views on revision of the so-called "tax anything" law, passed by the 1947 assembly.

Other major legislation scheduled to be advanced to the legislative process include Gov. James H. Duff's $15,000,000 state subsidy public housing program, the $459-789,750 general appropriations bill, measures to allow the state to purchase 10 privately owned toll bridges, and bills to allow Philadelphia to draft its own charter and to consolidate city and county governments.

The Mallory Fair Employment Practices bill reportedly will propose a mild program to prohibit employment discrimination because of race, creed, color or national origin.

"I know I'll never be able to do that, but I do know my two sons, aged two and four, will enjoy the simple stories. I will tell them some day as we sit by the fire. If I can only let them see the beauty of God's world, and, as they grow older, I hope the day will never pass without a beautiful picture having been left in their hearts."

"Mr. Erich, my husband and I love life, as I know you and your wife do. We can laugh at our troubles together, and we really have our share. But it makes us enjoy our lives, and the good times we have together will never be forgotten."

"The radio next door is playing an Irish lullaby. Tears come to my eyes as I remember my Papa, who was Irish, and who probably rocked me to sleep with that same lullaby, while Mom did the churning or finished up the ironing."

"Well, I could go on like this for hours, and you would never understand what I am trying to say. But perhaps you would at that. It is the very simple words in your column that make it so enjoyable."

That, my friends, is poetry. That is literature.

And, on second thought, I will mention the writer's name. She deserves it. She is Mrs. O. G. Sealy, of Chickasaw, Ala.

God bless her and her family.

Health Talks

By DR. W. A. WOMER

CLEANLINESS—GODLINESS—HEALTH

Some wise man said a long time ago that cleanliness was next to Godliness. He did not say whether it came before or after but he said a mouthful.

Cleanliness is a necessity for good health too.

This holds good for a person, a home, a school, a city, a nation. Clean hands, clean food, clean dishes, clean streets and clean rivers all help toward good health.

Buster could not give a definition of dirt but he knows when his hands are dirty. He doesn't usually care very much either.

Keeping clean is a difficult and expensive proposition but it pays. The church people say that it pays to have a clean mind. They may have something there too.

THE WORLD AND

Estimates made by proponents of the "compulsory health insurance" plans advanced in some states have calculated that this program alone would call for withholding of eight per cent of the worker's pay. It may be fairly assumed that Commissioner Altmeyer would underestimate rather than overestimate the cost of the Truman program and that the worker's share of the tax would be nearer eight per cent than five per cent.

One Fourth For "Security"

Add this assessment to the regular federal withholding tax and persons drawing average wages would soon find themselves contributing at least one-fourth of his pay check to "security"; he would work a day and a half a week for the government.

Employers paying five per cent—which also might be expected to increase to eight per cent—would be contributing a sum equal to a fair profit. Profits that might go to investors would be switched into the federal treasury.

The economic results of cutting workers' incomes by such levies and cutting employees' profits by an equal amount are obvious. Purchasing power and investment funds would be so greatly curtailed that employment would be reduced to the danger point. The end almost entirely would be socialization. Congress should nip the whole scheme in the bud.

not suffice. There still needs to be a fine family relationship at home—at breakfast, lunch or dinner, around the fireside—at all busy times and leisure times. How parents and children feel and act toward one another then are reflected in the degree of readiness in the children eight, 12 or 15 to attend church with the family, whether or not they all sit together at church.

After the child or youth has espoused a religious faith and promulgated publicly to try to live accordingly, he needs encouragement from everyone possible, especially from his parents, to abide by his pledge.

Great is our temptation, after the child has become a member of a church, even of scouts, to remind him when he has violated his public pledge. This rarely helps him. Usually it harms him and our relations to him. We need to work harder ourselves to set the stage so he will be likely to carry through his resolve and fulfill his pledge.

In View Of News Of The World

By J. C. OESTREICHER, INS Foreign Director

The North Atlantic Defense Pact began to move into the realistic stage with presentation of military aid requests that may cost the United States 2 billion dollars.

Eight European nations participating in the vast program of defense designed to safeguard western democracy against any contingency, made the requests.

They were Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Italy, Norway and France.

Needs Outlined

They outlined their needs and the costs have been estimated at the huge amount the Truman administration apparently is willing to advance as payment on insurance that if there is to be another war the democracies will not be caught unprepared.

Coinciding with news of the requests, which were made only one day after the treaty was signed, five of its signatories concluded a secret meeting at The Hague in Holland.

Promises were given that everything will be done to merit this American assistance. Defense ministers of the Western European Union powers—Britain, France and the Benelux nations—drew up plans to integrate their own military establishments and distribute armed forces and armament production in the most effective way.

Program Announced

This program was announced with the obvious intention of setting at rest the feeling in certain American circles that extension of assistance is to be on a one-way basis.

If carried out on the lines originally laid down, there will be created for the first time in history what actually amounts to an army of Europe—a perilous undertaking in some ways but one that is regarded by numerous experts as the only satisfactory guarantee of security.

The difficulties, of course, are tremendous.

Except in the cases where European armed forces have been supplied with U. S. military surplus, there are vast differences in conventional European armaments.

In keeping with old-time concepts of security, the various armies have used entirely different weapons of varying calibers.

It is only in recent years that the experiment of inter-changeability has been tried and many old-line military men have shuddered at the thought of identical weapons in the hands of different nationalities.

Differences Handicap

These differences applied in former times even to such otherwise fully cooperative defense units as the U. S. and British navies.

This was emphasized with utmost clarity when 50 over-age destroyers were turned over to Britain during the second World War.

Sent over at the urgent pleading of Winston Churchill, who feared that without them Britain would lose the battle of the Atlantic and perhaps the war, the ships proved of no immediate advantage to harried Britain.

Months had to pass before necessary adaptations could be made at British shipyards so the vessels could be serviced. It took time for the crews to familiarize themselves with strange operations.

Still In Infancy

Actually the integration of military machinery is still in its infancy. Britain and the United States finally have decided for the first time to utilize an identical nut and bolt, a seemingly minor thing. Yet the differences in thread and bore were a constant source of trouble during the war when America, as the "arsenal of democracy" was trying to keep the British military machine in constant and victorious operation.

Presumably the Western European Union nations now are to standardize everything. Equally important, they will abolish military secrecy in all forms. Also, if one nation has a surplus it will be distributed to those who are lacking and production will be geared to an over-all basis.

Some of this projected cooperation has an almost Utopian scope. Yet the leading minds behind the North Atlantic Pact and its Western Union corollary seem determined to make both schemes work, fairly and with mutual cooperation and sacrifice where needed.

Looking At Life

A lady in a small Alabama town has written my column for me today.

I don't know her. I shall probably never meet her. But I envy her, and I take my hat off to her.

This column of hers will also show several people what kind of poetry I admire. These people consoled me for having poked fun at poetry and told me that I wouldn't know good poetry if I saw it.

Today's column came to me in the form of a letter. It is written in good English. It doesn't rhyme. It isn't literature. But it is the expression of a simple yet noble heart that has solved the riddle of happiness.

Here it is:

"I am one of your many readers who enjoy your column. I think one of God's greatest gifts to mankind are people who can express their hearts."

"Some express their heart's feeling by music, some by singing and some by dancing. I am one of those who can do a little of all, but cannot express the feeling of my heart and soul."

"What wouldn't I give to be able to let others feel as I do when I see a sunset, or the contentment and happiness a farmer feels when he stands against the fence surveying his day's work, or when I see the suffering on a dirty little face as he looks at his pet dog whose life has just gone out."

"I could only find words to express the feelings of a mother with her new-born babe, or the beauty of a mare watchfully grazing while her day-old colt unsteadily waddles about."

"I always find something beautiful or gay or sad in everything I see. If I could only express it."

THE PRICE

From the rigors of winter a lot of us flee.

To climates where much gentler the breezes will be;

Where his mate from a tree top the mocking bird calls;

Where the sun lights the sands where no snow ever falls,

But all charms have a price for the pleasure they bring.

And where winter's unknown they may never have spring.

Where the trees never sleep and the streams never rest,

Where seldom the skies in gray mantles are dressed—

Where the towers never fade 'neath a withering frost—

The joy of the change of the seasons is lost.

Where never comes winter to bluster and sting,

They have never the joy of the coming of spring.

Though winter is heartless and cruel and cold,

There is this in its favor and praise to be told:

When its harsh rule is ended, behind it is seen

The glory of growing things once again green.

The fruit trees in blossom, the birds on the wing,

For winter the price the we pay for the spring.

We are in the midst of collecting funds for the Cancer Society . . . many local citizens are taking time to call on residents in their homes . . . to ask if they care to share in this very worthwhile campaign . . . to help fight the death taking disease. From one of these solicitors comes a very interesting story . . . drama in real life.

The door bell rang . . . and after a brief pause the door swung open . . . there stood a man, in working clothes of an industrial worker. Asked if he would care to help the Cancer Fund the solicitor was immediately invited to enter. After regular niceties of introduction the conversation settled down to the topic at hand. "Sure he would like to contribute. And here is briefly the story of the gentleman told:

"My wife is in the hospital now . . . the doctors say she won't live for more than a week . . . Cancer . . . we have two small children . . . nice kids too. I'm just a working man in a local manufacturing plant and I don't know right now how I will pay the hospital, doctor and funeral bills . . . of how I will take care of the children when the time comes . . . but I will do it somehow . . . right now I would like to give $100 to the cancer fund and if possible, would like that money used for research on Cancer." The solicitor told how the money would be used . . . both on national research and right here in our own county.

The story continued . . . "For many years my wife had a little dog, she loved it dearly. It was always around and actually helped raise our two kids. When she learned that it was cancer, we had a long talk, and she and I decided to send the dog away . . . we sent it to a Cancer research place where they use dogs for tests."

You who have read this short story . . . put yourself in the same situation . . . every day . . . some one in these United States is dying from the causes of Cancer . . . More study, more research is needed . . . let all of us do our part in seeing that the wherewithal maybe someday, somehow, such families as we have told about will not be broken by death caused by Cancer.

Science And Bureaucrats

(By Holmes Alexander)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—American inventors work secretly in cellars, garrets or even bicycle shops, awaiting the stroke of genius which will make them as rich and famous as Eli Whitney, Samuel Colt, the Wright Brothers or Thomas Edison. All they ask is to be left to their labors and, at the right moment, to have access to the Patent Laws by which the Government protects their investment in time and brainpower.

This was the theme-song of Fritz G. Lanham, a gray-haired patent lawyer who was testifying before the House sub-committee on public health, science and commerce.

Mr. Lanham, a former Texas congressman, is now a lobbyist for the National Patent Council of Gary, Indiana. That body pays him a small retainer to watch its interests in Washington. Mr. Lanham was testifying against the National Science Foundation Bill (H. R. 12) which, he said, would threaten the freedom of American thinking.

The bill, he seemed to think, would legalize Government snoops who would peer over the shoulders of inventors, stifle their enterprise and confiscate their patents. He quoted Thomas Jefferson: "I revere upon the altar of God, eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

Mr. Lanham also unleashed a scathing attack upon Dr. Harlow Shapley of Harvard University, an astronomer of great brilliance but of doubtful political associations. He posed the question of what would happen if Dr. Shapley, recently chairman of the stormy Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace, got into control of a National Science Foundation.

Too Much For Congressman

The juxtaposition of the Jefferson quotation and the attack on Dr. Shapley was too much for Rep. Sadowski, Democrat of Michigan. He cried out that Dr. Shapley "more nobly" understood the Jeffersonian principles of intellectual freedom than those who attacked him. Mr. Lanham was inclined to back down a little. He hadn't meant to be personal about the Harvard scientist. He was only citing the records of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and other loyalty investigators.

Rep. O'Hara, Republican of Minnesota, suggested that the committee call Dr. Shapley and find out his interest, if any, in the National Science Foundation. Chairman J. Percy Priest of Tennessee restored order and said that the question of calling Dr. Shapley was a matter for executive session. It was almost an executive session anyhow. Only six congressmen and about an equal number of spectators were present in the tiny committee room.

But the importance and significance of the discussion was not Science Foundation originated with President Roosevelt and was enunciated by Dr. Vannevar Bush, retired director of the Research and Development Board, in his now-celebrated report, "Science: The Endless Frontier." This report throws considerable doubt upon the sufficiency of American inventors. They are unsurpassed in the world for applying scientific principles to practical use. But the abstract science itself originates in European laboratories. The traditional sources of money to finance pure research have dried up in America. Private endowments no longer reach the university laboratories in any volume, and industrial firms have fewer excess profits to put into research. A National Science Foundation would supply the money and supervise the work. It is not an ideal solution but it seems to be a necessary one.

With Abstract Research

Rep. Bennett, Republican of Michigan, wanted to get back to the subject of the Patent Laws. How much of the Work under a Science Foundation would be patentable? This brought to the stand an expert witness, Pasquale Federico of the Patent Office. He testified that the Foundation, if established, would deal largely with abstract research, not inventions. You can't patent formulas like the Einstein Theory of Relativity or Newton's Law of Gravity. Far from stifling free thought and suppressing knowledge, the Science Foundation would encourage and circulate them.

Rep. Sadowski suggested that it was Big Business instead of Big Government which was suppressive. He said there were stories all around Detroit, his home town, that the oil interests were suppressing knowledge of a carburetor which would give 50 miles per gallon of gas.

Mr. Federico of the Patent Office began to grin. The fabulous carburetor is an old chestnut which has been around since the 1920's. During the World War II fuel shortage a Washington reporter tried to trace the word-of-mouth story to its source. He got nowhere. As late as last November the Sun Oil Company of Philadelphia published an expose of the ancient rumor, tracing it to the Hindu rubber tree which so many people talk about but no one has even seen.

Mr. Lanham said he could top the carburetor yarn. There was a vitamin which would grow new teeth—but the dentists had suppressed it. The joke drew no laugh. The whole business of a Scientific Foundation was a serious matter. Few congressmen want to turn science over to the bureaucrats. But nobody thus far has offered a better solution.

They Say

WASHINGTON—President Truman: "I never in my life ran for office that the Democrats didn't have a deficit to start with, and wind up with a deficit when they got through."

WASHINGTON—French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, commenting on the tri-power accord on Germany: "I should like to say that I am very much satisfied."

NEW YORK—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt: "I'm not afraid of communism. I think of course, that communism, if you don't recognize it by now, and anything you know, is not dangerous."

NEW YORK—British Foreign Secretary Bevin, departing for England: "It's been a great week's work in the history of the world."

Mr. Lanham said he could top the carburetor yarn. There was a vitamin which would grow new teeth—but the dentists had suppressed it. The joke drew no laugh. The whole business of a Scientific Foundation was a serious matter. Few congressmen want to turn science over to the bureaucrats. But nobody thus far has offered a better solution.

TAXATION GONE MAD.

President Truman has suggested to Congress that additional "social security" should be adopted by it. Should this suggestion be adopted favorably, a lot of working folks may find themselves in the position of the laborer who explained that he was always broke because of "de ducks."

"They deduct for this and deduct for that and the other until all the wages go to de ducks," he said.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, federal security commissioner, a few days ago told a Congressional Committee that the Truman program would require payroll tax withholdings of five per cent for employers and five per cent for employees—an increase of five hundred per cent for the employee.

Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright 1949, By The Baltimore Sun)

Dangerous Inertia Of People

WASHINGTON, April 11. THE sluggish indifference in Congress to the Hoover Commission's recommendation for reorganization of the Federal Government, grotesquely swollen and incredibly bungling, wasteful and inefficient, is a direct reflection of the inertia and unintelligence of the American people. There is no other way to explain it. The present situation is as complete an indictment of our unfitness to govern ourselves as has been made.

THESE may seem harsh words, but they are justified by the facts. If this nation were free of debt; if its citizens were lightly taxed; if there were a dependable surplus in the Treasury; if there were no war clouds in the foreign sky; if peace were assured, our defense armament reduced to the minimum and the rest of the world on its economic feet (an ideal condition which, of course, will never occur but may be assumed for the sake of argument), even then it would be inexcusably stupid not to enact the Hoover recommendation, which not only would save $3,000,000,000 a year but, through the elimination of duplication, waste and absurdities, restore reason and efficiency to a machine close to bogging down of its own weight.

EVEN under the ideal conditions above described there could be no defense for inaction, no argument against adoption, no sense in refusal. But, under conditions as they really are, not to act swiftly and favorably is more than stupid—it is wicked. It comes close to national insanity. It would be the most shocking demonstration of popular incapacity in all history. It would exhibit this nation as having, first, gone on record as realizing the necessity of regaining control of its governmental machinery; second, as having its request to be shown the way fully complied with; third, with full knowledge of the danger, as having turned its back, shut its eyes and done nothing.

THESE statements are by no means too strong. The truth is they cannot be made too strong. For here are the facts—far, indeed, from those ideal conditions, financially, the nation is in an appalling state. Instead of being free of debt, the debt—now more than 260 billions—is far greater than anyone dreamed could be sustained. The annual interest alone is twice as much as the total cost of government twenty years ago. Instead of being lightly taxed, the tax burden is unprecedentedly heavy. It bears grievously upon rich and poor alike. It has reached the point where to gain acutely needed revenue, economists generally fear the result of adding to it. Instead of a dependable surplus for nearly eighteen years, we have consistently run increasingly large deficits. Under such conditions any business, big or little, would be marked insolvent, branded as bankrupt. In other words, our Federal fiscal structure is strained to the limit.

INSTEAD of permanent peace, for two years we have been engaged in a frightening cold war with Russia and no man can be sure it will not become a shooting war. Instead of reduced armaments at vast cost, we are forced to build up a gigantic defense machine. And billions are being poured into the friendly countries of western Europe to promote their economic stability and strengthen our position. Finally, we have just concluded the North Atlantic pact, under which in the next twelve months we will furnish to the other signers 1½ billion dollars' worth of military supplies. This 1½ billion is not provided for in the President's budget and must be added to the 5½ billions necessary for the Marshall plan in the coming year. On top of all this, before the session has ended Congress will have appropriated several other nonbudgeted billions for a variety of purposes. The drain upon the Treasury will be terrific. We have got to get more revenue or go under. Where is the money coming from? Even if more taxes are levied, we will still be far short of our needs. In face of these facts, which no one disputes, one would think the Hoover proposal to eliminate waste, increase efficiency and save three billions annually would seem heaven-sent.

LITERALLY, there is everything to commend it. It is not as if the Hoover Commission were trying to sell it. The idea was not originated by Mr. Hoover but by Congress itself. It was Congress which unanimously passed a resolution creating the commission and asking it to do the job. The commission has done the job. Neither the accuracy of the report, nor the soundness of its recommendations are questioned by anyone. Practically no newspaper in the United States has approved. There isn't so much as a trace of politics anywhere. No one connected with the commission has anything even remotely to gain. No one in any party disputes the vital necessity of the proposed reorganization, which every President since Theodore Roosevelt has urged. Informed men know that if it fails this time it will never be done. This is the last chance.

OPPOSITION comes from the entrenched Federal bureaucracy and the labor lobby. Powerful as these are, they should be easy to override on so tremendous a matter as this. Yet, incredibly, it lags. Already it is being said that Congress will evade responsibility itself and merely authorize Mr. Truman to reorganize to the extent he desires. That, of course, means nothing at all. Most congressmen shrink from doing anything to disturb the constituents whom they have on the payroll. Their disposition is to run away from the drastic steps they are now asked to take in the national interests. If some way is not found to save this report from the lingering death which its opponents predict, this country's future is not pleasant to contemplate. Easily, it is the most important matter before Congress. Its fate will affect every project upon which we are engaged, abroad as well as at home. It is a dreadful thought that the people are incapable of being aroused on so vital and simple an issue.

JOBS UPON A TIME

AARON BURR, brilliant American political leader, had a tragic career. Born in 1756, he served valiantly in the Revolutionary army. As a lawyer he became a leader in his profession and in the political world. He was a candidate for vice president under Thomas Jefferson, but through a blunder, received as many electoral votes as Jefferson. However the opposition of Alexander Hamilton defeated him. He ran for governor of New York, but again Hamilton used his influence to defeat him. He killed Hamilton in a duel. He was later tried for treason for trying to raise an army to conquer Texas and establish a republic there, but was acquitted. He spent some years in Europe but at the pleadings of his daughter he returned, only to learn that she had perished in the shipwreck of the vessel in which she had planned to meet him. He died Sept. 14, 1836.

Fire Damages Home On Sunday

Overheated Furnace Cause Of Blaze In Waldo Street Home; Other Fires

Three fire companies were called to the home of Mrs. Mary Wieszky, of 526 Waldo street, at 10:05 a.m., Sunday, when an overheated furnace set fire to the ceiling in the cellar. Damage of around $200 was done. Fire Chief H. F. Steinbrink states.

Firemen were called out Saturday and Sunday on several occasions for grass fires, one occurring at Wilmington and Edison avenue, Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock; one in the rear of 450 Croton avenue at 4:05 p.m., Saturday, and one near the National Radiator plant at 1 p.m. Saturday. They were also called to the rear of the Wolf Junk Yard, on Moravia street, at 9:25 a.m. Sunday, when an old pile of railroad ties was set on fire.

Methodist Pastors Exchange Pulpits

Ministers of the New Castle sub-district of the Methodist church will exchange pulpits in connection with their annual observance of Holy Week. The program got underway in some of the churches on Sunday evening with others to inaugurate the program this evening.

The exchange will culminate with services to take place in the various Methodist churches of the city and county on Thursday evening when the respective pastor of that church will conduct a communion service.

Friday evening a union mass meeting will take place in First Methodist church when a special film "The Amsterdam Conference" will be shown. All the district Methodist churches will join in this meeting. Each service is scheduled for 7:30 each evening.

Sixty-five years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, the town of Prairie du Chien, Wis., was a thriving fur-trading center. Early French travelers found there a long-established Fox village, chief of which was named Alim, meaning Big Dog. In the French language this village became known as La Prairie des Chiens, which later the British and American traders changed to Prairie du Chien. It is situated on the Mississippi river.

wrapped in a white wool blanket, was brought up the rescue shaft in the arms of Bill Yancey, one of the horde of heroes who labored almost beyond human endurance to rescue the little girl.

A police car carried the small body to St. Luke hospital in nearby Altadena for a post mortem.

Probably Drowned

Cause of death was not disclosed immediately, but there was every indication that it was drowning. One of the rescue workers, Paul Neiford, revealed that he jammed a crowbar through the old well casing above where Kathy was lodged Sunday morning and water ran out. The point of his disclosure was that she was covered with water.

His words tended to confirm a report the child dropped into the water from a higher level during the very first rescue attempts on Friday evening.

When Kathy first tumbled into the well her cries could be heard down in the shaft. A rope was lowered to her and her mother pleadingly tried to tell the hysterical girl how to fasten it around her waist.

Firemen began to draw the rope up and for a brief time it was taut with the weight of Kathy's body on the other end. Then it went limp again.

Splash Is Heard

It was reported then, but not confirmed, that there was a splash, as though Kathy had slipped into water deeper down in the rusty shaft.

Her cries stopped shortly after that—and were never heard again. Kathy's body was reached some time before the announcement of her death was made.

For what seemed an interminable period, Homer (Whitey) Blickensderfer and O. A. Kelly, two of the biggest heroes of the rescue operation, struggled to extricate the child from the grip of the steel casing.

But she was lodged in so firmly she couldn't be budged without danger of injury. The workers were unwilling to risk that, until Kathy formally was pronounced dead. It was then Dr. McCulloch was summoned to the scene and lowered into the hole.

The steel pipe in which Kathy was encased was reached early in the afternoon after a battle first with water and then shifting tricky quicksand.

Cut Window Into Casing

After these difficulties were surmounted, the cutting of a "window" or escape hatch in the casing was begun at the 94-foot level with an electric saw and a pneumatic drill.

The pipe, years old that it was, proved tougher than expected and the operation proceeded at a tortoise pace. For a time a saw blade was being broken every four inches.

Finally the "window" was completed, disclosing Kathy's body a short distance farther down.

"Whitey" emerged from the rescue shaft on the verge of collapse and a report spread through the crowd the child had been found dead. The size of the throng watching the venture ballooned by perhaps 5,000 within an hour.

Recovery of the body wrote finis to a frantic operation that began early Friday night.

Two Shafts Dug

At first two shafts were sunk simultaneously beside the abandoned well. One was driven down by a cesspool digging machine with a 30-inch bit.

The other was scooped out with a clamshell crane. It made a huge pit, estimated as large enough to contain a nine-story building, as it hit into the earth.

A tunnel was driven over to the well casing at the 57-foot level from this pit and a hole cut in the pipe. A flashlight was lowered into the well and, using mirrors, workers were able to get a glimpse of Kathy.

Kelly was one of those who saw her. He commented ominously: "She didn't move."

The pit was driven down to 72 feet, but then suddenly abandoned because it showed signs of caving in.

Operations were then concentrated on the 30-inch drilled shaft through which the body finally was removed.

In a matter of minutes after the lifeless body of little Kathy Fiscus was removed from the abandoned water well, workmen began filling the huge excavations on the vacant lot.

St. Vitus Holy Name Breakfast

District Deputy Rudolph Kuhner Of K. Of C. Is Principal Speaker

St. Vitus church Holy Name Society members—500 strong attended the 7:45 o'clock mass, Sunday and received Holy Communion in a body, after which breakfast was served in the church hall.

President Dom Clorff presided and the principal speaker Rudolph Kuhner, district deputy of K. of C., was introduced.

"Catholic Action and the Cross," was the theme of Mr. Kuhner's talk. Quoting Pope Pius XII, he stated, "Catholic laymen can solve the evil problems of today." He continued that all should make an effort to correct evils in the home and everyday life by taking direct Catholic action in all our decisions. By Catholic action we mean: read Catholic literature; answer all questions pertinent to Catholicism intelligently; and by living a good, clean and decent life.

Mr. Kuhner pointed out that there are many symbols in the church, but among these, the one most endeared to us is the cross with the crucified Christ. It has stood above all for the past 2,000 years. It protects, inspires, saves and gives faith. He recounted instances where the cross had great bearing in the outcome of predicaments. He urged in conclusion, "Believe in the cross, have faith in it, and pattern your Catholic action by the way of the cross."

Program chairman, Francis Augustine announced that plans are completed for the Fathers-Sons banquet at the Cathedral on June 19. Louis Colella was awarded the Holy Bible at this meeting. Commander Edward DeCarbo of the Catholic War Veterans Post 741 announced plans for the past commanders banquet on April 23, at the Cathedral.

An excellent turnout was present at this communion breakfast, and fine comments were made to this respect by Mr. Kuhner. The Sodality served the breakfast efficiently.

Report Mortality Rate Of First Year Of Life Declines

Infant Mortality Rate Of United States One Of Lowest In World

NEW YORK, April 11.—Mortality in the first year of life has been reduced by more than half in the past two decades, according to the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The infant mortality rate in the United States is now about 32 per 1,000 live births, one of the lowest in the world.

The drop in infant mortality is attributed largely to the progress which has been made in the control of infections in early life. During the past two decades the infant death rate from pneumonia and influenza has declined by about 70 per cent, from diarrhoea and enteritis 90 per cent, and from the principal communicable diseases of childhood about 90 per cent.

Considerably less rapid, the statisticians note, has been the improvement in mortality from the causes which have their origin before or at birth. The loss of life from these causes, which include premature birth, various congenital disabilities and injuries at birth, has been reduced by only a little more than one-third during the 20 years.

Deaths from these causes are heavily concentrated in the first month of life. Accordingly, about twice as many babies die in the first month as in the remaining 11 months of the first year. Premature births may account for about one-third of all deaths in the first year of life, and for nearly one-half of the total in the first month.

A study by the statisticians shows the infant mortality rate to be most favorable in the Pacific coast, the middle west and the northeast sections of the country. South Dakota and Oregon have the best records, with average rates only slightly above 28 per 1,000 white live births.

"The outlook is bright for further improvement in infant mortality," the statisticians comment. "Much is being learned of the part that faulty nutrition, the Rh blood factor and disease in the pregnant woman play in causing congenital disabilities in the child. It is not extravagant to predict that the infant mortality rate will be brought down to about 25 per 1,000 in the next 10 years."

BRIDEGROOM SHOT

PITTSBURGH, April 11.—(INS)—Allegheny county detectives today were trying to unravel a strange rifle shooting which caused the death of a 22-year-old bridegroom of two months.

The shooting occurred Sunday morning in suburban Mt. Lebanon where Robert E. Griffith apparently shot himself with a .22 caliber rifle as he was going up the stairs in his father's home.

Griffith, along with his 18-year-old wife and two other couple, had returned from a party at a nearby tavern.

Top Military Men Do Not See Any Early War

By GEORGE MOISE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Top military men believe United States involvement in war is unlikely for the next 15 months.

They also cite scientific and intelligence reports that it will be 1951 or 1952 before Russia has an atomic bomb.

In testimony made public by the House Appropriations committee, both army and air force leaders asserted that a planned war is unlikely in fiscal 1950—July 1, 1949 to June 30, 1950.

At the same time, the generals testified that war might result in that time from an unplanned incident that could provoke nations into combat.

Situation Summed Up

The situation was summed up by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, deputy army chief of staff for plans and combat operations. He said:

"We feel in the army that war is not imminent but we also recognize an incident which might occur, developments which might take place, which would precipitate a war. It is against such circumstances that we are trying to prepare."

Wedemeyer's superior, Chief of Staff Gen. Omar N. Bradley, was more blunt. Asked frankly if he anticipated war in fiscal 1950, he replied:

"No sir, I do not think so. Last year I was more worried than I am at the present time."

Maj. Gen. S. E. Anderson, air force deputy chief of staff for operations, expressed the air force view. He told the subcommittee:

"I would say that fiscal year 1950 is a period in which no major power is likely deliberately to resort to force of arms."

"It is a period through which the danger of unplanned hostilities as a result of miscalculation will continue."

Dependent Upon Scientific Progress

Other leaders indicated that if there is another war it will be largely dependent upon scientific development.

Brig. Gen. Donald L. Putt, in charge of air force research and development, said that "the next conflict will be a war of science and will no doubt be won by the nation which has applied the most advanced scientific principles to the design of weapons."

Air Force Secretary Symington said that "most of the civilians I have talked with do not believe there will be hostilities until any possible aggressor is in possession of the atomic bomb."

He added the generally accepted assumption, based on the best scientific and intelligence knowledge, is that Russia will not have an atomic bomb before 1951 or 1952.

Maj. Gen. K. B. Wolfe, of the Air Materiel command, expressed the opinion that Russia does not have bombers comparable with such U. S. planes as the B-36, B-

47 or B-50. Asked if he believed reports that the best Russian bomber was about like our wartime B-29, he replied:

"That is our information." Air Force Lt. Gen. H. A. Craig testified he did not believe the Russians enjoyed any more scientific progress than the United States because of their importation of German scientists after the war.

Eclipse Of Moon On Tuesday Night

An eclipse of the moon will provide a special treat for stargazers Tuesday night.

If the night is clear, it will prove to be an awesome sight to general observers. It won't have any scientific values so far as astronomers are concerned.

The eclipse will start at 9:28 p. m. and end at 12:54 a. m. The moon will be completely in the earth's shadow from 10:28 p. m. to 11:54 p. m.

The moon won't be completely obscured from sight during the total eclipse because the sun's rays passing through the atmosphere are refracted, or bent inward, around the earth.

At the same time, the atmosphere filters out the blue and violet rays, allowing only the red-yellow rays to strike the moon's surface.

This will cause the dim copper color of the moon during the eclipse.

War Brides Plan Future Meetings

Arrangements Are Under Way To Change Name To International Wives
The War Brides group which met in the Red Cross building recently had such fine response that it must seek larger quarters.

Consequently, Mrs. Joseph O'Hara and Mrs. Harry Snyder of Falls avenue, New Castle R. D. 8 have scheduled the next meeting to be in the YWCA on Friday, April 29.

Both Mrs. O'Hara and Mrs. Snyder are of English background but they say that many nationalities are represented in this group. They also said that a number of war brides even though they have been in this country for over a year are still unacquainted and therefore very lonely. Any war bride from another country no matter what her race, nationality or creed is welcome, they say.

These young ladies do not wish to be known as war brides any longer. Some of them have been married for a number of years and neither do they like the connotation that the word "war" carries. Therefore, there are plans to change the name to International Wives which they think would be more appropriate.

Any woman from another country married during the war years or after may call either Mrs. Snyder or Mrs. O'Hara at 3486-R for further information.

The old Seminole Indians lived along the New river, Florida. They called the river Himmarshee, Himmars, in their language, meaning "new". Later white men literally translated the name into its present form.

U.C.T. Memorial Service Is Held

Members Gather In First Methodist Church For Annual Service Sunday Evening

Memorial services were conducted by New Castle Council No. 408, United Commercial Travelers, on Sunday evening in the First Methodist church, when members of the council and their families attended in a body, and occupied a special section in the church auditorium.

The pastor, Rev. James Andrew Gaiser, delivered a sermon appropriate to the occasion, taking as his subject, the theme, "Pulling Together." There was a nice attendance of the members of the order and their families. Special music was rendered by the quartet during the service.

Paul Laurell, senior counselor, introduced John Louer, chairman of the committee, who paid tribute to the memory of those who have passed beyond other members of the committee on arrangements were Earl Brookover and James H. Elmore.

CHILD INJURED
Jean Louise Fallen, aged two years, of 1810 Highland avenue, was treated at the Jameson Memorial hospital Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock for a laceration of the my makeup. I was over here on Friday when the rescue operations began. I noticed then that they didn't have enough volunteers. "That love I have for my own kids just made me go up there and offer to help dig what I hoped would be a path of freedom for little Kathy."

Gave First Indication

It was Paul, oddly enough, who gave the first inkling that there was no hope of Kathy being found alive. Last night he said:

"When I was down in that shaft this morning I chucked my crowbar at a rusty place in the well casing. Water poured out. I thought little of it because Kathy was supposed to have lodged in the well a good many feet above that point."

"However, when they announced that Kathy had been located five feet below that point where the water appeared, I realized that she must have drowned when she slipped down the well."

"I knew there was little hope. 'Not only that, but the other fellows in the rescue party felt toward the end that their efforts were futile.'

"It's a feeling that you get—an oppressive sort of mood that makes for no mistakes." Paul was right.

Senate Heads Into Battle Over Steam Plant Power Plant

Erection Of Steam Plant At Tennessee Valley Authority Operations Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—The Senate headed today into a battle over whether the constitution allows the government to build a steam plant to supplement Tennessee Valley Hydroelectric power. The fight—which threatens a further slowdown in the Senate's lagging legislative pace—shaped up as the Senate prepared to act on the half-billion dollar first deficiency bill.

The measure carries a $2,950,000 appropriation to start the Tennessee valley authority's fifty-four million dollar steam generating plant at New Johnsonville.

Private power company lawyers protest that such a project, going beyond making use of natural resources, water power, would be unconstitutional. But they say that under existing court decisions, no citizen could carry the issue to court.

The deficiency bill might be further lengthened by debate over the status of reclamation director Michael Strauss, pushed off the payroll last Jan. 31 by an appropriation rider last year. Leaders, however, are trying to postpone that fight until the regular appropriation bill for the next fiscal year comes along.

Six appropriation committee Senators want to amend the TVA allocation to specifically allow a taxpayer to take the steam plant question to the supreme court.

Symphonic Notes

A giant violin more than six feet high is the bass of the string choir. The tone of the contrabass, though exceedingly deep and rich, is quite weak in relation to the size of the instrument. Sufficient basses in a symphony orchestra supply a wonderfully rich and deep tonal foundation, perceptible no matter how powerfully the rest of the orchestra is playing.

The string bass players with the New Castle Symphony Orchestra are: Clair R. Gibson, principal, Angelo Filigenzi, William Kinnard, Edward Balog, Rev. Howard Redmond, Joseph Murano.

'Corky' Gettings Marches In Greece

George "Corky" Gettings, a member of the U. S. Navy and son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Gettings, R. D. 1, had a very interesting experience recently in Greece, according to a letter just received by Woodson Collins of The News staff.

According to the letter the young New Castle lad participated in the Greek Independence parade on March 25, having been chosen with a group of three platoons to march in the parade which was reviewed by the King of Greece. The men got a good view of the King.

Last week, "Corky" visited in Naples Italy. During his stay in Greece, he visited the ruins of the ancient Grecian temples.

Bradley Declares Officials Should Be Charged Treason

Charges Treason For Officials Who Leaked Military Secrets For Publication

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—A Congressional committee and Gen. Omar N. Bradley angrily declared today that Pentagon officials who recently "leaked" military secrets for publication should be charged with treason.

The army chief of staff declared that the disclosures were "bordering on being guilty of treason" and those responsible for the leaks "should be tried for treason."

The House Appropriations committee followed up Bradley's assertion by advising the full House that:

"Releases of secret data concerning plans affecting the national security must be viewed in the light of treasonable action and the responsibility fixed."

Bradley's blast at those responsible for the "leaks," which recently caused a furor in Congress, was made a month ago at a closed hearing before the House Armed Services Appropriations subcommittee. The testimony was made public Saturday.

The chief of staff was questioned concerning news stories about possible B-36 targets in Russia and developments in biological warfare. Rep. Mahon (D) Texas, chairman of the House group, commented:

"I believe the average American citizen is disgusted and alarmed by the revealing of military secrets, a tendency which has been in progress for a long time."

Bradley replied: "I agree with you fully that we are passing out information which, during the last war, cost us millions of dollars and many lives to attain. The information which is being put out, purportedly highly secret, is such that in my opinion anyone who puts out any such information as that is bordering on being guilty of treason and should be tried for treason."

Later when Rep. Engel (R) Mich., advocated that those making unauthorized disclosures should be fired, Bradley asserted: "I would say we ought to go much further than that, sir. I would say we ought to try them for treason."

The chief of staff said that in his opinion, no responsible air force official was the source of the B-36 information and that such "leaks" came from "people who talk as individuals."

Communists Blamed For Spanish Wreck

MADRID, April 11.—(INS)—Radio Madrid charged last night that the derailment of the Barcelona-Madrid Express Feb. 13, in which 29 persons were killed, was caused by communist agents acting under orders from the cominform.

The Spanish government radio said the cominform has ordered communist agents in Spain to be- gin a widespread campaign of violence and sabotage, including factory destruction and bank robbery.

Security Council Expects Meeting Of Chiefs Of Staff

Expect Possible Meeting Abroad With President Truman Participating

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—The National Security Council is anticipating a possible meeting abroad of the chiefs of state with President Truman participating.

James S. Lay, Jr., assistant executive secretary of the agency, of which the president is chairman, has requested a $9,000 appropriation for traveling expenses for the 1950 fiscal year beginning July 1.

The House Appropriations committee released Lay's testimony in which he was asked to state the purpose of the funds. He explained:

"This request for travel is in anticipation of possible meetings overseas, at or home, at which national security affairs may be considered and at which the council members may wish the executive secretary or parts of the staff to attend."

"The possibility of international conferences at which the president, or the secretary of state, or the secretary of defense may wish the services of the staff of the National Security Council is anticipated here."

"We are anticipating . . . the possibility which has happened in the past of possible meetings between chiefs of state . . ."

Edenburg Group Hears Rev. Payden

Rev. Henry Payden, pastor of St. Paul's Baptist church, this city, gave a very interesting address to an appreciative audience in the Methodist church of Edenburg, Friday evening. Accompanying Rev. Payden was the quartet of the church, who ably sang several selections.

Rev. Payden favored with several vocal selections. Accompanying him at the piano was Mrs. Clarence Jones of the Edenburg Christian church. MINERS LAID OFF

PITTSBURGH, April 11.—(INS)—John P. Busarello, president of district five of the United Mine Workers union, today blamed a lack of orders for stream coal for the layoff of 800 western Pennsylvania coal miners.

He said failure of the railroads to order stream coal was entirely responsible for the layoffs which have followed the miners return to the pits after the two-week memorial holiday called by UMW President John L. Lewis.

The size of Sweden is 172,963 square miles.

Dock Strike Ties Up London Shipping

LONDON, April 11.—(INS)—Some 15,000 London dock workers and stevedores went on strike this morning, leaving 30 ships, including some loaded with food, standing idle in the Thames estuary.

The walkout was called to protest the dismissal of 33 dock workers who were laid off on the grounds of being "surplus."

The strike, which is also holding up several vessels loaded with export cargoes, threatened to completely paralyze Thames shipping, and seriously hamper Britain's vital foreign commerce.

Attlee Derides Russian Policy

GLASGOW, April 11.—(INS)—Russian policy, in the opinion of Prime Minister Attlee, "would be laughable if it weren't so tragic."

In an address before a Labor party rally in Glasgow last night, the British leader called Soviet criticism of the Atlantic pact "a Nazi tactic," and charged Russia opposed the Marshall plan in order to keep Europe impoverished. He added:

"The responsibility for dividing the world rests squarely on the shoulders of the rulers of the Kremlin."

Former Governor Of Michigan Ill

POULAN, Ga., April 11.—(INS)—Chase S. Osborn, 89-year-old former governor of Michigan, was reported in critical condition today.

Attendants at his Poulan home said Osborn's condition was "unchanged" throughout the night and that he still hovered near death at 6:30 a. m. EST.

The rugged philanthropist's attack began Saturday afternoon shortly after his marriage to a 55-year-old adopted daughter, Stella-nova Osborn.

The agent reported seizure of large quantities of cocaine and heroine, with a market value of $75,000, in the home.

President Mrs. E. D. Woods presided and introduced the speaker. An excellent report was given by Mrs. Ralph Markley on the point system.

It was planned by the Auxiliary to treat the kiddies who happen to be confined in the hospital on Easter. Mrs. Oscar L. Murphy is the chairman of the group.

May 5, is the next meeting date.

Report Forrestal Has 'Breakdown'

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—Strange mystery today surrounded the condition of former defense secretary James V. Forrestal who is in the U. S. Naval hospital at nearby Bethesda, Md.

A high cabinet member, who declined to be identified, said Forrestal had suffered a "complete nervous breakdown" while vacationing at Hobe Sound, Fla.

When Forrestal was flown to the hospital last week, Louis Johnson, his successor, called a conference of top service officials, particularly the navy. Johnson reportedly swore them to secrecy about Forrestal's condition and what happened in Florida.

This prevents the story from being told. Officers contacted say they either don't know anything about the case or that they can't say it.

Visa Restrictions Threaten Paris Peace Conference

Government Restrictions To Iron Curtain Delegates Threaten Paris Congress

PARIS, April 11.—(INS)—A rival anti-communist conference and government restrictions on visas for delegates from "iron curtain countries" on Saturday threatened the world peace congress scheduled to open April 20 in Paris.

French liberal intellectuals organizing the rival international peace conference extended invitations to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Professor Sidney Hook, union leaders David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther and physicist Arthur Compton in the United States.

(A pro-Soviet cultural and scientific conference for world peace, held in New York two weeks ago brought large-scale picketing and a counter-demonstration by anti-communist liberal intellectuals.)

The anti-communist group also invited Britain philosopher and mathematician Earl (Bertrand) Russell, union leader Robert Edwards, scientist Sir Henry Dale, Richard Crossman, laborite member of parliament and Julian Huxley, former head of the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization.

The anti-communist meeting scheduled to open April 30 will stress that the threat to world peace arises from Soviet attempts to spread communism rather than United States foreign policy.

Meanwhile, the world peace congress vowed to take unspecified steps to combat a ruling of the French foreign office to limit each eastern delegation to eight members.

The foreign office also reserved the right to select the eight from the applications submitted in each country.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

Time To Talk Things Over

Many of us parents wish our youngsters would talk things over with us as they grow older. Sometimes we worry about it. Sometimes we keep after them, asking how school is going, what they did at parties and all sorts of other things. When they don't respond or show that they would rather not talk, we're upset.

One of the difficulties in talking things over these days is isn't enough time for it. Very few people can discuss things about which they are concerned at any old time. They have to be in the mood. This is as true of children as it is of adults. Too much eagerness to know what is going on inside also is likely to put a damper on confidence.

A little more leisure in home arrangements might very well open some of the gates and give youngsters and parents a chance to talk through certain things. More relaxed meals, a not-too-hurried approach to doing dishes, dropping an evening engagement now and then is likely to make people more ready to chat about matters that are on their minds. Such conversations can be scheduled but must develop naturally in an unhurried leisurely atmosphere.

British Girl Goes Back To Austere Job

Had Traded Jobs With Bayonne, N. J., Girl, Returns To Britain Aboard Queen

SOUTHAMPTON, April 11.—(INS)—A British girl who worked in the United States for a month returned to her normal life in austere Britain on Saturday, "almost speechless with American hospitality."

Ada Fishburn, who traded jobs with Mary Uglianitz of Bayonne, N. J., returned to Britain aboard the Queen Mary.

During the month Miss Fishburn worked in the United States, Miss Uglianitz held down Ada's job in Spennymoor, County Durham.

The British factory girl told a welcoming group of newsmen and photographers that her short stay in the U. S. hadn't changed her. "I'm still the same Ada," she insisted.

But after a moment's reflection she added: "What a marvelous place America is!"

"I had a swell time. You should have seen the steaks on my plate." She had words of praise for American girl factory workers, who said were quicker at their job than her British co-workers, but use more up-to-date machinery.

Miss Uglianitz is remaining in Britain for several weeks to visit a brother who is stationed overseas with the U. S. Air Force.

Army Uses Polish Guards In Germany

Used To Assist Our Forces In Guarding Property And In Certain Types Of Work

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—The army has a foreign legion of 15,000 "Polish guards" in Germany.

Maj. Gen. H. R. Bull, director of organization and training, told a House subcommittee on military appropriations that the Polish group is "used in Germany to assist our forces in the guarding of property and in certain construction and maintenance work."

Bull said that the guards are composed mostly of displaced persons who were Poles, but that there were "some Estonians, Lithuanians and some other Baltics included."

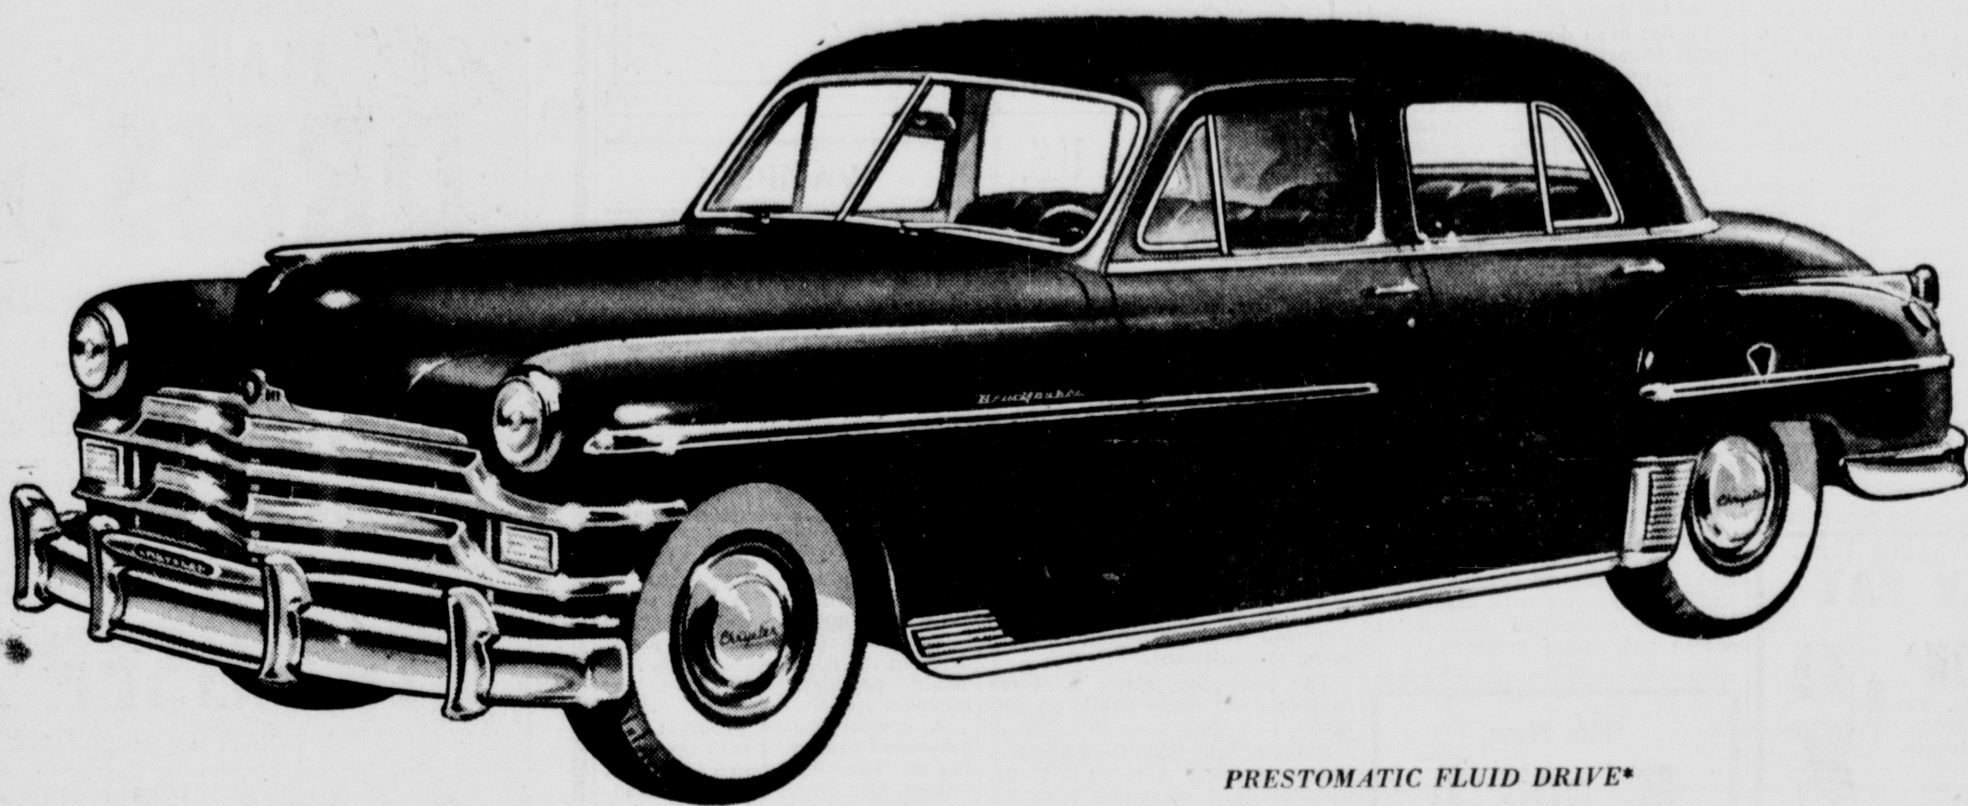

He asserted in testimony made public today that they "are very high class people", that all of them had been carefully screened, and that they are paid five dollars a month.

Mothers Don't Want Sons To Be Flyers

According To Testimony To House Military Appropriations Subcommittee

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—Mothers don't want their boys to be flyers.

Brig. Gen. B. M. Fitch, of the Army Adjutant General's department, disclosed this to a House Military appropriations subcommittee.

In testimony made public on Saturday, he said that "mothers represent a major problem in recruiting, and carry a great deal of influence," adding:

"When it comes to the Air Force and the Bombardiers and the Aviation Cadets, they are more reluctant to let their sons go than the fathers; but both favor the ground more than the sons, themselves, do."

Petition Commissioners To Place Question On Ballot In Wayne Township

OTHER NEWS OF
NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Petitions have been received by the county commissioners from Wayne township voters asking that the question of Sunday baseball be placed upon the ballot in September.

The main impetus for the vote comes from the Cheverton district where there is a baseball team.

ANOTHER LARGE VERDICT

Another large damage verdict has been returned in Lawrence county. Silvio A. Dell and Margaret F. Dell, administrators in the estate of Louis B. Dell were awarded two verdicts for the death of their son.

Two verdicts were awarded against Edward Chadderton trucking company of Sharon and Joseph Macri, one for $8,750 and the other for $1,966.50. Pasquale Zona was an additional defendant but the jury exonerated him from any damage payments.

Eugene F. Scanlon was awarded $867 against Thomas and W. Thayer Martin for the use of a roller he had rented them. There was no question as to the use of the roller, the issue was how many days. Mr. Scanlon was awarded payment for 23 days at $50 per day, less $83 for gas and oil.

CASH AT SALE

In the future persons who purchase property from the county commissioners will have to produce the money at the time of the sale. Several times in the past three years sales have been made,

Miss Helen Karidis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Karidis, of 1602 Delaware avenue, directed a gym exhibition at the Farrell Senior high school gym on Friday evening, with 90 pupils participating. New Store Front
At Winter Company
Nears Completion

Several Innovations Make Glass And Aluminum Facade Pleasingly Different

One of the most pleasing store fronts in downtown New Castle is in the final stages of completion at the Winter Co., 210 East Washington street. The remodeling was started January 31.

"Visual front" is a coined term that best describes the new all glass and aluminum facade. This combination of the latest in construction materials was designed to give more room to the store's interior and to complete a modernization process that was started in 1939 but was interrupted by the war years.

From the street or inside the store, one may get a view of the very latest in clothing store design. The display windows in front are staggered so that the clothing in one window and the furnishings displayed in the other will both be at eye-level for the pedestrian.

Terazzo Walks

The base of the windows, the vestibule and sidewalk are made of terazzo, a polished combination of cement mixed with marble chips. A heating coil has been installed under the sidewalk, which extends to the curb. This will facilitate clearing the approaches to the store of ice and snow.

A new sign, made of suspended letters cast in aluminum by the Cartwright Metal Products Co., has been installed.

Five Plant Display

New decorations on the interior include several new display cases and rubber padded carpeting. Another innovation is the live plants in the front part of the store that can be seen from the inside or from the street. Blooming Easter plants are now in the boxes that will be changed according to the season.

The Winter Company opened its first store in New Castle 43 years ago. George F. Winter, founder of the store, is president and manager of the corporation. J. Robert Winter is vice president and treasurer. George F. Winter is assistant treasurer and assistant manager.

New 65,000 Ton Super Aircraft Carrier Cost Gone Up Since Last Year

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—The estimated cost of the navy's 65,000-ton super aircraft carrier has gone up 27 million dollars since last year.

Former Defense Secretary Forrestal revealed in testimony made public on Saturday by the House Appropriations committee that the cost of the vessel, exclusive of ordnance, will be "about" 152 millions.

When Congress was arguing last year over the feasibility of building the giant ship, which the air force says would be a sitting duck for an atom bomb, members were informed that it would cost 125 millions.

Forrestal, who testified before he relinquished his post, said "some" 36 million dollars additional would be required for ordnance and initial ammunition.

That would bring the cost of the carrier, largest warship ever built to 188 millions.

Work on the ship is now under way at the Newport News Shipbuilding Co.

Try And Stop Me
By BENNETT CERF

A quiet block in Greenwich Village will never be the same since one determined joker invaded it last summer. He appeared first with two accomplices at Number Nine and said, "We've come for that parlor sofa."

While the servant watched in silence, the sofa was carried from Number Nine and taken to Number Thirty-four. "We're delivering that parlor sofa," he explained—and left it standing in the hallway. By noon a considerable amount of heavy furniture had been shifted hither and yon. Then the joker disappeared. A great deal of explaining was necessary before order was restored.

Wild Anti-Soviet Demonstration Takes Place At Russian Mission Building

MUNICH, April 11.—(INS)—Three persons were hospitalized today in the wake of a riot by more than 10,000 displaced persons from eastern Europe who staged a wild anti-Soviet demonstration at the Russian mission building in Munich.

American occupation troops with seven light tanks used gas and bayonets to break up the demonstration Sunday in defending the mission building which later was found to have been secretly evacuated by the Russians.

The DPs were led by seven mounted Cossacks in native costume who carried the flags of the Ukraine, Hungary, Lithuania and Latvia.

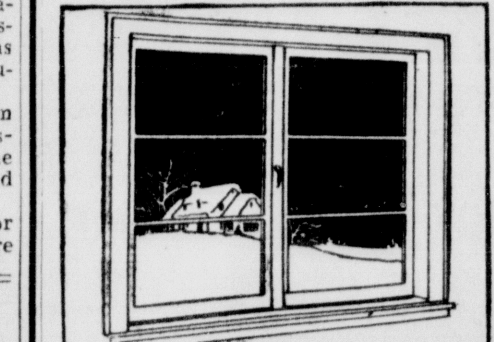

In addition, the demonstrator waved placards reading "Where are the graves of thousands of tortured Latvians?" and "Blood thirsty Moscow!"

En route to the demonstration, the DPs clashed with several German communists standing outside party headquarters.

FSA Official Tells Medical Grads Of Proposed Health Plan

Declared That The Proposed Plan Will Place No Great Burden On Government

NEW YORK, April 11.—(INS)—Medical graduates at Columbia University were told Saturday that the proposed National Health Insurance program will place no great burden on the government purse.

J. Donald Kingsley, acting federal security administrator, said the controversial program will be financed in large part by payroll deductions with the government making up the deficit.

He told the fourth year medical students that Congress undoubtedly will impose limitations on federal contributions.

Kingsley said the reason for the present shortage of doctors and hospitals is that there is no way to support them. After noting the situation as particularly acute in the south and southwest, he added: "The reason those facilities and personnel we do have are inequitably distributed is that their distribution today naturally follows that of income."

The FSA official asserted that only one U. S. family in five can afford anything like adequate medical care.

Kingsley said voluntary insurance plans cannot solve the problem because "the plain fact is that they cost too much."

He charged that the cry of Socialism from some quarters is, in effect, the same argument used a century ago in an attempt to defeat the idea of free public school education.

Marcus Annaeus Lucan or Lucanus was the last of the Roman epic poets. He lived from 39 to 65 A. D.

New Plastic Armor Developed By Army

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—The Army has followed the example of Knights in the middle ages and developed a body armor. Col. E. J. Finks of the Quartermaster Corps demonstrated to a House subcommittee on military appropriations a piece of laminated, flexible nylon-base plastic that could be used as body armor and would stop a 45 caliber bullet at 15 feet.

The Army also is experimenting with the material for helmets weighing half as much as the standard steel headgear.

Schools To Teach Students Education

Students Taught A Great Deal Of Government Functions But Not Of Education

STATE COLLEGE, April 11.—Students in public schools learn about the operation of police departments, the courts, and many other functions of government, but little has been done to teach them about education itself.

Recognizing this fact, the Pennsylvania School Study Council has prepared a unit to teach students about the schools they are attending. The unit is being tested among 12th grade students in 15 school systems within the council.

At the close of the term, teachers who have been conducting the work will revise the unit, which will in a few years be the general public and it is important that they know something about the public schools," says Dr. William S. Vincent, professor of education at the Pennsylvania State college, who is secretary of the council.

The Pennsylvania School Study Council, one of the few organizations of its kind in the country, was organized two years ago. It is an independent cooperative organization of school systems in central and south central Pennsylvania, and is concerned with improving the schools through various research and action projects.

Sullivan Warns U.S. Is Have Not Nation

Told House Committee That Nation Lacks Many Strategic War Materials

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS)—Navy Secretary Sullivan cautions that the United States is a "have not" nation in respect to many critical materials.

Sullivan, arguing the need for a navy to protect supply lines, told a House Appropriations subcommittee that "we must face the fact that in many strategic raw materials we are woefully far from being self-sufficient."

The testimony, given at closed hearings, was made public on Saturday.

Sullivan said that the daily livelihood of many Americans is dependent upon manganese from India and Africa; tin from Malaya, and chromium from Africa and Asia.

If the waters were drained away from the Hawaiian islands on which the volcanoes of Kilaua and Mauna Loa are located, scientists tell us that we should see that these volcanoes are mountains almost 30,000 feet high, about 16,000 feet of which are under water.

Seek To Match Vince Foster And Rocky Graziano

Site For Bout Not Selected

Foster's Manager Offered $50,000 For Bout With Graziano Coming Summer

CHICAGO, April 11.—(INS)—A super-duper bad boys' special between Rocky Graziano and Vince Foster has turned up in boxing's torrid promotional warfare. The tournament of champions, which, like Mike Jacobs' 20th Century club and Joe Louis' International Boxing club, is scrambling for the works, has its hooks into this one. The thing broke Saturday when lean Jack Hurley, Foster's manager, reported he'd received a $50,000 offer from T. of C. to match his boy against the Rock this summer. Location wasn't specified, but the general assumption was it would be in the greater New York area, where the T. of C. is strongest.

To put the battle on in New York's Polo grounds, T. of C. first would have to get the local boxing commission to lift its ban on Graziano. Rocky was suspended in New York two years ago for failing to report a proffered bribe in connection with his scheduled fight against Reuben Shank.

Maybe New Jersey But the neighboring New Jersey shore invites invasion, and who is Rocky Graziano, who hasn't had a money fight since he lost the middleweight title to Tony Zale nearly a year ago, to say no? Why, for that matter, is Vince Foster?

Vince is the tumultuous Omaha, Neb., welterweight whose knock-out conquest of Tony Pellone in New York's Madison Square Garden three months ago set the boxing world on end.

Like Graziano, he has his troubles. Rocky's dishonorable discharge from the Army produced a suspension in Illinois. It is in Illinois, too, that Foster has been served with a $100,000 damage suit in which the complainant, a Kansas City woman, charges rape.

Manager Hurley will talk things over with the T. of C. in New York some time this week.

County Schools Baseball League To Begin Today

Poor Practice Weather Has Hampered Nines; Wampum, Bessemer In Favorite's Role

Baseball in Section 9, WPAL, comprised of county high school teams gets under way today with a three-game schedule.

All teams have been hampered by wet weather this Spring and will take the field with a maximum of three or four days practice. Some squads have worked out only twice.

Wampum's home field is not in shape and their home opener will be played at Bessemer. New Wilmington is at Shenango and Union visits Wampum.

Wampum loses key man

Wampum, last year's champ, and Bessemer are favored to cop the Section 9 pennant. Wampum has lost some key men from the varsity, nine that defeated Sharon in the first round of the playoffs last season. One of the departed is Donald Kosior, brilliant pitcher, who is now a Giant farmhand assigned to the Erie Sailors.

Bessemer has most of the same team that was a close contender last season.

The county teams will play a ten-game schedule mostly on Monday and Thursday afternoons.

Rifle Club To Shoot Tonight

The scores of the Friday shoot with Ellwood City here: Thomas 246, Moore 240, Carrigan 240, Williams 236, Johns 236—total 1195. Ellwood City: W. Milnes 239, Minter 236, McCormick 236, Schweinsburg 235, Young 233—total 1179.

WILL HAVE WORKOUT

The Ryantown baseball team of the city league will have a practice session at Lee avenue field at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday nights this week, it was announced by business manager Andrew Cline.

Penn State Has Confidence In New Coach-Joe Bedenk

By TROY GORDON

(International News Service Sports Writer)

PITTSBURGH, April 11.—In the nation of Bob Higgins as football coach at Penn State and the elevation of assistant Joe Bedenk as his successor, there was an unusual angle that went unnoticed.

In these days of "win or get out and we'll hire someone who does" college football, it's refreshing to see a replacement such as this one. First of all, Higgins resigned after 19 years as grid mentor at State College. "Resigned" has become very loosely used in connection with coaches in recent years, but this is one case in which the resignation was real.

Not Under Pressure There was no particular pressure on Higgins from disgruntled alumni, although it is understood there was a few years back. Two good years killed that.

Higgins, because of poor health, just up and quit. Hereafter on autumn Saturday afternoons he won't be on the bench chewing his nails down to the quick. He'll be up in the stands—chewing those same nails.

He'll also continue as a professor of physical education. Then, instead of going cross-country and hiring some high-powered successor, Penn State officials promoted Bedenk, one of their own alumni and a veteran of 20 years of faithful service for his old alma mater.

Bedenk has been Higgins' chief assistant all the way for 19 years. Those famous Penn State lines have been Bedenk's products, and Higgins has leaned heavily on the strength of the forward wall in his style of play.

Former All-American Higgins is 55, Bedenk 51. The former was an all-American end at State in 1919, the latter all-American guard in 1923 in the Rose Bowl. Higgins returned to State College in 1928. Bedenk in 1929. A year later, Higgins became head coach.

In the last 19 seasons, State has compiled a record of 91 victories, 57 defeats and nine ties. The best season was 1947 when the eastern collegiate championship, an undefeated season and a tie in the Cotton Bowl all belonged to Penn State.

Clean Slate The Lions had gone 18 games without a defeat (two ties included) when Pitt upset them 7-0 in the last game of 1948.

That gives Bedenk a clean slate

Sam Snead Wins Masters Tourney

SAMMY SNEAD

(By International News Service)

A brilliant 67 on the final round gave Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, West Va., an easy victory in the 13th Masters Golf tournament at Augusta, Ga., yesterday.

Snead's total for 72 holes was 282. Pittsburgh's Johnny Bulla and Lloyd Mangrum, of Niles, Ill., tied for second place with 285.

Wins On Putts

Snead, whose victories usually are due to his long-distance hitting, won this one because of his brilliant short game, with a new putter.

It was the third straight tournament victory for the 34-year-old Sammy. He recently won the Greensboro, N. C., open and the Palmetto tournament at Aiken, S.C.

ABC Tournament Officially At End

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(INS)—An official list of prize winners in the American Bowling Congress tournament, which ended in Atlantic City Saturday night, will be issued after A. B. C. auditors complete their compilation of scores.

The prize money will total approximately $375,000 for the 55-day tourney, which attracted some 30,000 bowlers. The scores were the lowest in many years. The winners and their scores were: Singles—Bernard Rusche of St. Bernard, Ohio, with a 716 three-game series.

Doubles—Donald Van Boxel of Green Bay, Wis., and Gene Bernhardt of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., with 1,332.

All events—John Small of Chicago with 1,941. Team—Jimmie Smith's five of South Bend, Ind., with 3,027.

Record Crowd Sees Dodgers Get Beat

ATLANTA, Ga., April 11.—(INS)—The southern tour of the Brooklyn Dodgers continues to be a personal triumph for Jackie Robinson, their negro star, in breaking down barriers against his race, and a gold mine for the club.

A record crowd of more than 20,000 jammed every nook and corner of Atlanta's ball park, built to handle only 14,000, to watch the Dodgers play the Crackers yesterday. The swarming humanity extended to hills outside the park. The Crackers won the ball game, 8 to 4.

Lyons And Pozza Fight Wednesday

Chuck Higgins, Consistent Winner, To Box Marty Marlin Of Cleveland

Billy Pozza, Ellwood City's up-and-comin' 187-pounder, battles Jackie Lyons Oklahoma City, in a legalized glove brawl scheduled for eight rounds Wednesday night in The Arena. Lyons is the most highly regarded opponent Pozza has yet met. A few weeks ago Pozza dislocated Jackie Thompson in a rough and vicious fight at Ellwood City, and fans expect him to tear into Lyons, hoping to knock out the westerner before Lyons can befuddle him with tricks and experience.

Lyons has trained with Lee Sala at Braddock, while Pozza has "prepped" at Ellwood City.

Jackie is built less compact than Pozza, but will probably have an inch or more advantage in height. Both possess a knockout punch, as is seen by Jackie's "kayo" of Reuben Shanks and others, and Pozza's numerous knockouts of amateur days.

Peaks Vs Izzo

Not having seen Lyons fight for several years Here & There deems it infeasible to predict the winner.

Duke Peaks, Youngstown's burly wallpaper, at 160, will re-fight Johnny Izzo, seventh ward plugger, in the six-round semi-final. If the fight is as vicious as their first bout at Ellwood, fans' animal lust will have been appeased.

A touch of brilliance was added to the docket when Matchmaker Tom Leach signed Chuck Higgins, Campbell to fight Marty Marlin of Cleveland at 160.

Marlin is a newcomer here but Higgins has been a consistent winner, is an earnest fighter, and hits like a mule's kick.

They are listed for six rounds. Drexel Vickers, East Liverpool's 145-pounder, who outpointed Roy Crews several weeks ago, battles Buddy Walls of Sharpsburg in a four-round bout.

Heavyweight Andy Bailey, Ellwood, battles Ray Bassett, Sharpsville, in the first four rounder.

Nats Will Have Tuesday Workout

Manager Billy Mongiello Decides To Start Day Ahead Of Time, Squad Gathers

With a squad of about 10 or 12 players reporting today, Manager Billy Mongiello, of the New Castle Nats has decided to start limbering up of the players at Flaherty Memorial Field Tuesday morning.

The players are being quartered at the New Penn Hotel. Among the group are several Cuban stars sent here by Joe Cambria.

Start Limbering Up

Mongiello returned from Washington today and is vastly encouraged by the playing material being sent here by Ossie Bluege. The Nats will go through calisthenics and light fungo hitting tomorrow and the pitchers will start limbering up the arms.

The practice sessions will start in earnest on Wednesday and Thursday it was indicated.

Bill Bradley To Box Brown

Bill Bradley, local middleweight, is scheduled to fight Ken Brown, at the Arcadia club, Detroit, Tuesday night. The match was arranged by Merle Richards, boxers' agent of Detroit. Bradley reports he has also been booked for bouts at Saginaw and Flint.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

CARL ROGAN, International News Service sportswriter, reports he and oodles of other sportsmen are opposed to House Bill 750 which the House has passed. Should the senate take favorable action and Governor Duff affix his signature to the act, it will result, Rogan reports in Pennsylvania dropping as "the number one Game state in the Union". It now is listed as the eighth best Fishing state, according to the federal fish and wildlife service.

W. R. McMillen (R.), Indiana county, is the father of Bill 750. If enacted into law it will result in a game and fish commission being under the domination of political members of the house and senate. Sportsmen hope to prevent this. The bill provides that, two members of the house and two members of the senate, shall be appointed to sit as commissioners on the Fish and Game bodies. It proposes to raise the membership therefore, of both commissions to 12, instead of the present eight commissioners for game and, seven for fish, and the commissioner of fisheries.

There would be 12 instead of eight game rulers. The eight men presently on the commission would have the power to vote, while the four politicians would not. They would, however, according to Rogan, enjoy all the rights and privileges of the membership. The voting power is the least consideration involved in such a set-up. But, of course, it is the one favorable thing in the bill.

Every time the present eight commissioners render a decision there is an uproar. Adding four to the commission, will not lighten matters. In fact, it will make it more difficult to arrive at a decision, when one is to be decided. Rogan says the climax of such a situation, will be a defunct game and fish management.

"The person engaged in political set-ups isn't what we want," Rogan writes. "To have them in our fish and game commissions is what the sportsmen have opposed since 1896. He reports the Allegheny County Sportsmen's league opposes the bill. Reports state the State Federation of Sportsmen also oppose it, and hope to defeat it. Rogan further points out that, there are indications that should the bill pass the senate, there is very little doubt that the governor, who has the power of veto, would permit the bill to become a law.

State Fish commission has announced the arrest of 23 persons for trout, prior to the opening, which doesn't occur until next Friday. . . . Danny Gardella recently tried his hand at boxing in a gymnasium not long since to prepare for a ring career, but gave up the idea. . . . Pennsylvania Governor James H. Duff signed the bill permitting the shooting of bob-white quail on regulated shooting grounds. . . . Indications point to Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson going to court.
